

Special Session On Constitution Set For Dec. 3

LANSING (AP)—The next big political issue in Michigan is arising even before the last one—Gov. George Romney's tax reform program—turns cold in its grave.

Another special legislative session, slated to begin on Dec. 3, will deal with bills needed to implement the new Constitution which becomes effective the first of next year.

It will give the Democratic party, whose leaders hope they scored a propaganda victory when Romney's tax reform program was defeated, another chance to shoot at Romney.

Democrats—who fought bitterly against the Constitution's acceptance by the people last April—can be expected to receive all the same old arguments.

An indication of what's to come was contained in a speech prepared by Democratic State Chairman Zolton Ferency for delivery today to the Allen Park Democratic Club.

Progress "Shackled"
Assailing Romney for failure to get his own Republican party solidly behind fiscal reform, Ferency said:

"The present Republican governor once and for all exposed the real cancer gnawing at the Michigan body politic—the backward, Republican-dominated legislature which is totally dedicated to only one ideal—stagnant self-perpetuation.

"And the real tragic-comic irony is that George Romney, the victim, almost single-handedly shackled progress in Michigan, perhaps for years to come, by thrusting upon us a new Constitution which creates a private preserve in government for the self-same rural Republican negativists."

If there is "irony" in what Romney did, there may be some in what Ferency says, as well.

Repeal Talk Revived
Some of the most adamant opponents of the new Constitution were not Democrats, but Republican legislators usually identified with the so-called "conservative" rural bloc.

One of them, Rep. Gail Handy, R-Eau Claire, has already prepared a resolution aimed at repealing the entire document. Handy calls it "a legal Frankenstein."

Some 100 bills to implement the new Constitution are in final preparation by an 18-member legislative interim committee which has worked all summer and fall.

Many other legislators, both Republican and Democrat, will also be filing bills, some hoping to salvage through implementation what they didn't get when the Constitutional Convention wrote the document.

Soviets Free Yale Professor Nabbed As Spy

MOSCOW (AP)—Prof. Frederick Barghoorn, arrested in the Soviet Union as a spy, was reported to have left today by plane for London.

Barghoorn, whose release was announced earlier by Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, was reported by airport authorities to have left on a British plane on a scheduled flight to London. Gromyko said Barghoorn was being freed because of the "personal concern" of President Kennedy.

Barghoorn was accompanied by five or six plainclothesmen and the Soviet automobile carrying them drove right up to the ramp of the plane.

Reaction Jolts Officials

The shy, retiring, blonde professor was arrested around the end of October and accused of espionage. The reaction in America was so violent that Soviet officials appeared shocked. President Kennedy ordered postponement of negotiations for a two-year extension of the cultural agreements which were to have opened next Tuesday.

He was reported put aboard the plane barely four hours after Gromyko told Minister Counselor Walter Stoessel of the U.S. Embassy that in view of the concern expressed by President Kennedy, Barghoorn was being released and expelled from the Soviet Union.

The embassy gave out the news in a brief statement which said:

"The charge d'affaires ad in-term of the American Embassy was notified by Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko today that the Soviet government has decided to release Prof. Barghoorn and expel him from the U.S.S.R.

"Foreign Minister Gromyko said this action was taken in view of the personal concern expressed by President Kennedy about Prof. Barghoorn's arrest."

The 52-year-old professor, who was on a tourist visit to the Soviet Union, was arrested sometime after he visited Stoessel Oct. 31.

The Soviet government notified the U.S. Embassy of his arrest Nov. 12 and set off a controversy that caused U.S.-Soviet relations to drop sharply.

Repeated efforts by U.S. embassy officials, including Ambassador Foy Kohler, to see Barghoorn, were dismissed by the Russians.

The United States reacted sharply to the arrest. It canceled cultural negotiations which were scheduled to open next Tuesday in Moscow. It was not known immediately whether the negotiations will be resumed.

President Kennedy denounced the arrest at a news conference in Washington and denied that Barghoorn was involved in espionage activities.

In Moscow, U.S. embassy personnel boycotted a meeting to celebrate the 30th anniversary of the recognition of the Soviet Union by the United States.

Sen. Kennedy Makes Attack On Goldwater

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP)—The Kennedy political family has made its first direct attack on Sen. Barry M. Goldwater of the Republicans.

Democratic Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, the President's younger brother, spoke Friday night at a party fund-raising dinner.

Beside hammering at Goldwater and praising President Kennedy's domestic and foreign policies, the new 35-year-old senator from Massachusetts made a hit with the women.

Squeals of delight came from women in the audience as Kennedy, in a boyish haircut and navy blue suit, strode to the speaker's table.

Kennedy, making his first political speech outside his home state, said the Democrats would run for election next year on a record of economic recovery, price stability, and economy and efficiency in government.

He did not identify Goldwater by name. However, his allusion was unmistakable.

Up to this time none of the Kennedys had made any direct assault on Goldwater.

Sen. Kennedy hit at Goldwater over what he called the latter's advocacy of abolition of the progressive income tax and support of voluntary Social Security and a national right-to-work law with abolition of the union shop.

Kennedy said Goldwater's income tax proposal would "take us back to 1916." The income tax was adopted in 1916.

He said Goldwater's proposal for voluntary Social Security in place of the present compulsory program would mean the "end of Social Security as we know it." He said a right-to-work law would mean the "end of equality at the bargaining table."

Father Of Girl Jailed, Happy

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"Daddy, I love you."

Robert J. Moreland said those words, spoken by his 3-year-old daughter, made it all worth while.

Moreland, 30, is in jail on a child-stealing charge.

He's accused of taking the little girl, Sencie Ann, from the communicable disease ward at General Hospital where she was being treated for sleeping sickness.

Moreland said he took the child from the hospital because he was convinced she was not receiving proper care.

"She couldn't talk at all the night I carried her down the fire escape," he said.

"A week later, she said her first words. She said: 'Daddy, I love you.' That was worth all the trouble."

Moreland, a construction worker, said he took the girl to La Mesa and later to Chula Vista where he saw that she had medical care.

"I gave her what she needed most—love," said Moreland.

Within two weeks, Moreland said, Sencie Ann was able to walk again and he took a job at a Chula Vista roofing plant.

Police arrested him and returned father and daughter to Los Angeles. The girl was put in Juvenile Hall while Moreland went to jail.

Moreland faces the child-stealing charge because Sencie Ann was made a ward of the court when her parents were divorced last December.

Seagulls Dying Off By Hundreds

BENTON HARBOR (AP)—Federal, Michigan and Indiana authorities are seeking the cause of a mass death of seagulls along the southern tip of Lake Michigan.

William J. Beecher, director of the Chicago Academy of Science, estimates 5,000 gulls have been found dead on beaches between New Buffalo, Mich., and Gary, Ind., over the last week.

Beecher reported other fish-eating birds such as loons, grebes and herons also had died, but that the vast majority of deaths had been among gulls.

Gull deaths also have been reported as far north as Charlevoix, but in not nearly as great numbers as along southern beaches of the lake.

Both Michigan and Indiana Conservation Departments have collected dead birds for laboratory tests. So has the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Dr. Woodrow Fleming of Purdue University said Indiana might have the answer to the mass deaths by next week. Michigan authorities thought it likely would require much more study.

Things Going All Right, Says Sen. Goldwater

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater thinks "things are going all right" in the presidential race he hasn't formally entered.

While Goldwater gave that assessment of the 1964 Republican picture, leaders of the drive to put him at the top of the GOP ticket gathered in Washington to size up their operations.

"Why rush? Things are going all right," Goldwater said Friday night when newsmen asked him when he will announce whether or not he is a candidate for the nomination.

Later, he answered questions at a Harvard Business School Association dinner, and this was the first one:

"Why delay your announcement? We're all for you?"

It won't be long before more than 700 Pittsburgh businessmen and their wives. So did Goldwater's reply.

The Arizona senator said he'd need "some time to really think about the whole thing."

"Besides," added Goldwater, who tops public opinion polls on the nomination, "it's going all right the way it is."

Goldwater had some barbed comment on Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, the only declared candidate for the GOP nomination.

He told a news conference Rockefeller has been wrong about 90 per cent of the time in his representation of Goldwater positions.

President Gets Look At Polaris

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—President Kennedy flew here today for a first hand report on the nation's man in space program and to watch the submarine firing of a Polaris missile.

The presidential jet touched down on the Cape Canaveral skit strip at 10:10 a.m. EST after a flight from Palm Beach where Kennedy is relaxing for the weekend.

He was greeted by test center and National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials and immediately joined a motorcade for a swift tour.

A jammed two-hour schedule called for the chief executive to view the world's most powerful rocket, a Saturn 1; discuss the two-man Gemini program with astronauts Leroy Gordon Cooper Jr. and Virgil I. Grissom; receive a progress report on the Apollo man-to-the-moon project; helicopter over the nation's budding moonport, and helicopter to a ship 30 miles at sea to watch the Polaris launching from the submerged nuclear submarine Andrew Jackson.

Program Under Fire

The visit was calculated to boost the embattled manned lunar landing program, which has come under heavy criticism from some quarters recently, primarily because of the high cost, estimated between $20 billion and $40 billion dollars.

Congress still has not approved a fiscal 1964 budget for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, which originally requested $5.7 billion. Earlier this week the Senate Appropriations Committee okayed a sharply trimmed $5.19-billion figure.

Astronauts Cooper and Grissom, veteran space pilots of the Mercury manned flight program, coordinate over all Gemini planning as their specialty assignment on the 30-man astronaut team.

The first unmanned Gemini orbital flight is scheduled in February. The initial two-man orbital mission is slated late next year. Eventually, Gemini teams will remain in orbit up to two weeks and will rendezvous their spacecraft with other orbiting satellites to practice techniques essential for Apollo.

Range 1725 Miles
The mammoth Saturn 1 rocket towers 16 stories above the base of launching pad 37. Engineers are readying it for its first two-stage test flight next month—an effort to hurl the world's largest satellite, a 33,000-pound monster, into orbit.

The Saturn 1 generates 1.5 million pounds of thrust.

America's moonport is on Merritt Island, an 87,000-acre tract adjoining Cape Canaveral. Here, NASA is spending nearly one billion dollars on facilities for Apollo launches.

The 140-man Andrew Jackson Gold crew was aboard the submarine to conduct the firing of the Polaris A2 missile, a weapon with a range of 1,725 miles. The Gold crew recently completed three successful firings in as many tries, including the first two underwater shots of the 2,875-mile range Polaris A3. The Blue crew earlier fired an A2.

ALBION (AP)—Police are investigating the slaying of an 80-year-old Albion man, who was strangled with a rope and struck on the head in an apparent robbery.

The body of William Behling was found Friday under a pile of brush and leaves, about 1,500 feet from a side road. Jackson County Sheriff's deputies said one man was held for investigation, but did not identify him.

Deputies said Behling's wallet and papers were missing and two expensive rings also may have been taken from the victim.

Behling was last seen riding in a car Thursday afternoon, they said. The car was observed about a mile from the spot where the body was found.

Is $100 Lost

KALAMAZOO (AP)—For Richard Bryant, 24, of Kalamazoo, a penny saved turned out to be $100 lost.

He was fined $100 in municipal court Thursday after pleading guilty to tampering with the mechanism of a parking meter.

Police said Bryant wrapped tin foil around a penny before inserting it in the meter in an attempt to jam the mechanism. He was caught in the act, police said.

Warning Of U.S. Is Ignored By President Illia

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Argentina Friday night ignored a U.S. warning of possible serious consequences and annulled its multimillion-dollar oil contracts with eight American and four other foreign companies.

President Arturo Illia carried through with a campaign pledge and issued decrees placing foreign petroleum production and development under the control of the government-run oil agency, Yacimientos Petroliferos Fiscales (YPF). The decrees authorized YPF to use force if necessary to take over the operations.

It was not immediately known whether the companies would be fully compensated since the final annulment papers will be drawn up by Argentina's procurator general. There was no indication when he would deliver his decision.

Legal Action Planned
The U.S. companies, who have estimated that they invested $397 million for drilling and exploration operations, have already indicated they will take legal action to gain compensation.

President Kennedy has maintained that the United States could not block the long-threatened annulment but that the United States would press for full compensation for the American firms.

Washington also has indicated to Argentina that the annulment could result in a reduction or cutoff of U.S. aid and private investments.

A State Department spokesman said in Washington Friday night there was no immediate U.S. comment on the Argentine action.

Economy Minister Eugenio Blanco announced the decrees which annulled all development, exploration and service contracts signed by the oil companies since May 1, 1958, when former President Arturo Frondizi was in power.

Deals Called Illegal
The decrees maintained that those contracts were illegal and "harmful to the rights and interests of the nation."

Illia, who was elected July 7, had made annulment of the contracts a key plank of his election campaign.

There was doubt whether the decrees covered the refining operations of two firms, Esso Argentina, a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey, and Shell Oil, a British-Dutch consortium.

The other companies, which held only exploration and drilling contracts, are: Tennessee Gas Transmission, Houston, Tex.; Cities Service of California; Marathon Petroleum (U.S.); Continental Oil, Houston, Tex.; Pan American Argentina International (Standard Oil, Indiana); Transworld Drilling Co. (Kerr-McGee, Oklahoma City); Southeastern Drilling Co. (Fort Worth, Tex.); E.N.I. (Ente Nazionale Idrocarburi) of Italy, and Astra and Cadipsa, both of Argentina.

Warm Welcome

BELGRADE (AP)—A United States Army engineer group en route to the earthquake-shattered city of Skopje arrived today to a warm welcome from the Yugoslav government.

The construction force of 12 officers and 135 enlisted men, who volunteered for the project, came from West Germany aboard two trains. After a brief stopover they left for Skopje. They are scheduled to arrive there Sunday.

Vinko Vinterhalter, minister of information and representatives of the Yugoslav army and American embassy welcomed the group at the railroad station.

Vinterhalter, on behalf of the Yugoslav government, thanked the U.S. government for aid given to Skopje after last summer's quake and thanked also the group for coming.

In Skopje the group will construct 250 prefabricated houses.

U.P. Would Be In 61 County Court District

The new State Court of Appeals authorized by the new Michigan Constitution which becomes effective Jan. 1 is being implemented through committee action which has proposed a state districting which would throw the Upper Peninsula into a district with 61 of the state's 83 counties.

Wayne (Detroit) County would be District No. 1 under the proposal, with 2.6 million population.

Nineteen counties about Wayne in southeastern Michigan would be District No. 2 with 2.7 million population. They are Huron, Tuscola, Sanilac, Genesee, Leapeer, St. Clair, Macomb, Oakland, Shiawassee, Ingham, Livingston, Jackson, Washtenaw, Hillsdale, Lapeer and Monroe.

All the rest of the state would be in District 3 with 2.3 million population.

Rep. Clifford Perras (R-Menominee-Dickson), a member of the judiciary subcommittee of the Committee on Implementation of the New Constitution, said that the Court of Appeals as proposed would consist initially of 9 judges who would be nominated and elected at non-partisan elections from districts drawn on county lines and reflecting as nearly as possible equal population.

The State Supreme Court could prescribe that the Court of Appeals sit in divisions, with such divisions consisting of not fewer than three of the 9 appellate judges, to be elected three from each district. The appellate judges would hold office for 6 years staggered terms.

The jurisdiction of the appellate court would be between the circuit courts and the supreme court. Each judge would receive an annual salary of $23,000. The court would be under the control of the supreme court, which could administer it through the court administrator, and the supreme court would have authority, under the proposed act of implementation, to transfer judges from circuit or superior bench to the court of appeals to act as temporary appellate judges. Appellate judges could not practice as attorneys.

The court would have jurisdiction on appeals from recorder's court, superior court, circuit courts, and court of claims; all final judgments from justice courts, police courts, municipal courts, probate courts, common pleas courts and other courts inferior to the circuit courts. Appeals from final judgments or decisions would be a matter of right, but all other appeals from other judgments or orders would be subject to permission by statute or supreme court rule.

The court of appeals would sit in "Detroit, Pontiac and Grand Rapids, or at such other places as the supreme court shall direct," and the offices would be located in Lansing.

The court staff would include a chief clerk, deputy clerks, a research law clerk for each judge and secretarial personnel.

Soo Canal Work Set

SAULT STE. MARIE—Construction of the Soo canal's second lock, suspended last year, "should be in full swing" in 1964, according to Lt. Gen. Walter K. Wilson, chief of the army engineers.

Here for an inspection of the locks and other army installations, he forecast October, 1967, as the completion date for the huge new Poe lock.

The new structure, big enough to handle a 1,000 foot vessel, will cost more than 40 million dollars. The army engineers already have spent $7,500,000, but more than 32 million dollars remains to be appropriated.

As plans now stand, Gen. Wilson said, bids for the main lock structure will be asked early next summer, with excavation and foundation work scheduled to start about Dec. 1 and be completed before the start of the 1965 navigation season.

Kennedy Drops Lake Erie Has Walleye Boom

NEW YORK (AP)—President Kennedy has begun a five-day East Coast tour by irritating the New York Police Department—by obeying traffic signals.

By tonight, however, Kennedy will be relaxing at the family's winter home in Palm Beach, Fla., where policemen are used to a president wheeling around town without fanfare.

In New York, Kennedy decided he could do without a 35-motorcycle escort, with its sirens and flashing red lights.

Press secretary Pierre Salinger said the President decided to avoid disrupting New York traffic and to act "like an ordinary motorist, stopping at stop lights."

The decision collided with the conviction of New York police that they know best how to protect the President in their city.

Kennedy emerged unscathed from his spin through the city from La Guardia Airport. He even expressed delight at the drive—though his limousine had to stop for 10 red lights.

He vowed to continue the practice while remaining in the city, where he spoke today to the AFL-CIO convention.

Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy, asked for his reaction to the President's decision, had only a curt "No comment."

But another police official lamented that Kennedy was exposed to "unnecessary risks" by driving blithely into a situation where police had "no real control."

The Secret Service, charged by law with protecting the person of the President, would say nothing. The service can overrule even the President where his personal security is involved.

Eat More Fish, Is Advice Of Michigan Solon

WASHINGTON (AP)—Trying to help the Great Lakes fishing industry recover from the botulism scare, a Michigan congressman Friday urged federal agencies' eating establishments to use more Great Lakes fish.

An estimated 20,000 fishing industry employees were laid off after a decline in fish sales followed reports of seven deaths traced to botulism in smoked fish from the Great Lakes area.

The written plea by Rep. Elford A. Cederberg, R-Mich., was directed to all branches of the armed services, Veterans Administration hospitals and federal installations where eating facilities are operated by contract concessionaires.

The walleyed pike are back in Lake Erie after a mysterious disappearance that lasted nearly five years. The walleye bonanza is reminiscent of that in the Bays de Noc in the late 1940s.

"We hadn't caught more than just the odd one for years," said Harold Cull, mayor of Kingsville, Ont., who operates a fishing vessel on Lake Erie.

"Then one day last month commercial fishermen began getting big hauls in their nets."

On one trip last week, Cull brought in 600 pounds of fat, sleek walleyes, or pickerel as they are called by some. On another trip his haul was 500 pounds in warm, calm weather, which he calls poor for fishing.

One day earlier this month, Bev Rankin of Kingsville, in his fishing vessel the Raymarbe, brought in about 3,000 pounds of yellow pickerel.

The yellows, except for a few stragglers, disappeared almost as if a great hand had swept them away in 1958. The year before, in the 1956-57 season, the yellow pickerel haul by about 30 Kingsville commercial fishermen alone was several million pounds.

The next year it dropped sharply and until this year, hauls had been insignificant.

"Last year when I found walleyes in my nets I usually took them home for my own table," said Cull.

Then, to the surprise of the commercial fishermen, this fall's walleye bonanza arrived. Walleyes sell today at the docks for about 26 cents a pound, compared to about 10 cents a pound for perch. Walleyes are of the perch family but more closely resemble pike. Said H. G. Julien, manager of the Kingsville cooperative that handles fish caught by vessels operating out of the port.

"The biologists told us the pickerel would be back and they were right."

He estimated the cooperative might handle up to a million pounds of walleyes this year compared to last year's catch of less than 50,000 pounds.

Dr. Vernon Applegate, chief of the Lake Erie Investigations for the U. S. Bureau of Commercial Fisheries in Sandusky, Ohio, also is puzzled by the return of the walleyes. He said the tasty fish is plentiful now only in Western Lake Erie. Elsewhere in the big lake the walleyes still have not returned in any number.

Still, he and other scientists knew by June, 1962, that this year's walleye bonanza was on the way.

"We discovered by trolling that there had been a good hatch in 1962," he said. "Why did this happen after so many bad years? We just don't know."

He explained that this year's hatch was "very poor, as bad as that of 1961, which was very bad."

Does this mean walleye fishing will be poor again in 1964 or 1965? Dr. Applegate will not predict.

Meanwhile the commercial fishermen in Lake Erie are enjoying a prosperity that finds some deckhands working on shares and earning up to $300 weekly.

They aren't making any predictions either.

Soviet Union's Aims Unchanged, Britain Is Told

LONDON (AP)—Foreign Secretary R. A. Butler declared that despite recent moderation toward the West, "the Soviet Union's aims remain unchanged."

"We must recognize that," Butler told the House of Commons in his first speech since taking over the foreign office from Sir Alec Douglas-Home, now prime minister.

"Some people fear that the process of discussion with the Soviet Union is in some way dangerous to the West," Butler said.

"Of course it would be if the West spoke with different voices."

"But flexibility, which I intend to see should prevail, is not synonymous with weakness. And we are determined to uphold the vital interests which the overwhelming power of the Western world has been created to defend."

Butler thus made it clear that Britain's attitude toward Moscow will continue as it was before Sir Alec was promoted from the foreign ministry to succeed Harold Macmillan as prime minister.

FAA Certifies Enstrom 'Copter

Certification of the F-28 helicopter of the R. J. Enstrom Corporation of Menominee has been approved by the Federal Aviation Authority (FAA) with a provisional airworthiness certificate. This paves the way for final test phases and indicates the aircraft substantially meets the demanding Federal requirements.

In anticipation of the FAA certificate, Enstrom has been building molds and jigs needed for production schedules. John M. Christensen, Enstrom president, said the company expects to employ between 20 and 25 persons by the first of the year.

Fred A. Hill, Enstrom vice-president of sales, said the certificate affords opportunity for prospective purchasers to fly the aircraft "for better demonstration of the excellent handling qualities."

"The advanced F-28 design features simplicity, rugged construction, high speed performance and the lowest price tag in the industry for a three-place helicopter," Hill said.

According to Hill, domestic and export orders are already on hand with an increasingly widespread interest among users here and abroad. To date five foreign distributors have been appointed.

Enstrom has been moving into the new $70,000 factory building at the Menominee County Airport which was built for Enstrom by the Menominee Industrial Corporation and purchased by Enstrom on a lease-purchase agreement. An "open house" is planned for Nov. 30.

Holiday Street:

Plan Colorful Yule Lighting

Escanaba stores and shops are beginning to bud with attractive Christmas displays and within a few short weeks the business district will blossom into the annual color and animation of holiday street.

Even now city employees are devoting some rainy days in readying the miles of decorations that will glow and shimmer along Ludington St., while electric department crews are preparing to raise the decorative lights and glowing symbols of the holidays throughout the business areas.

City Manager George Harvey said the decorations will probably be put up late this month.

This year the holiday lighting will be extended to include garlands of greens suspended above the street, with gayly colored lights entwined among the evergreen branches. These are being restored to the decorative scheme after an absence of several years.

Lighted stars, colorful lanterns and other Christmas decorations will be raised above the street on light poles at intersections. There will not be a Christmas tree in the center of Ludington St. this year because of the traffic hazard.

The City Council makes an annual appropriation to assist in financing the Yuletide decorations. This is matched by the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce.

The city's appropriation is for $1,500, of which $1,000 is for decorations along Ludington St. and the remainder for lighting in other business areas.

The gay lighting adds to the community's Christmas cheer and is an attractive invitation to make Escanaba a center for holiday shopping. Expansion of the decorations will make a more colorful display than in the past several years.

Downstate Hunt Has Heavy Kill

By The Associated Press
Some 350,000 hunters took to the woods Friday as Michigan's general deer hunting season got under way in the nicest opening weather in years.

First reports indicated the kill was heavy.

The day, however, was marred by two hunters being shot to death, another dying of a heart attack, two being wounded and two dying in miscellaneous mishaps.

Thousands more are expected to join the woodlands through over the weekend.

Mrs. Earl Pomranky, 47, of Midland, and Elwin Lee, 50, of (RFD-2) Crosswell, were the opening day gunfire victims.

Mrs. Pomranky, a hunting veteran of more than 20 years, was struck by a bullet which police said was accidentally discharged from a rifle held by her daughter, Mrs. Eugene Kline, 24, also of Midland. The two were hunting about 16 miles north of Midland.

Lee was killed while sitting in a hole on a deer run in Big Creek Township of Oscoda County. Police said Lee was hit by a bullet when Ronald Dedafio, 21, of Ypsilanti, fired at a deer, but missed.

The death of William McKech-nie, 55, of Whitmore Lake, was blamed to a heart attack. Police said he collapsed while chasing a wounded deer in Alcona County.

Julian C. Gerou, 59, of Flint, was found dead in his cabin at Skidway Lake in Ogemaw County and Coroner Jonas Dall said Gerou apparently died of suffocation after setting his bed afire with a cigarette.

John M. Kromrey, 39, of Fern-dale, suffocated when he was pinned face down under his overturned car near Empire in Leelanau County.

Robert Houston, 32, of Detroit, lost his left hand in what police said was a demonstration of how to load and unload a rifle in Norman Township of Manistee County.

Henry Max Tyson, 60, of Jackson, was wounded in the right leg when, police said, he and another hunter fired at a deer as it ran between them in the Idlewild-Baldwin area of Lake County.

In the western Upper Peninsula, where the deer season opened a week earlier than in the rest of the state, one hunter was killed by gunfire in Gogebic County Monday. He was Clayton E. Cunningham, 49, of Pontiac.

War Prisoners To Be Honored At Battle Creek

BATTLE CREEK (AP)—This southwestern Michigan city will pause Sunday to honor its World War II dead—26 German prisoners of war.

American and German flags will flutter over the graves and the national anthems of both nations will be played in the annual "Volksbrautag" (Memorial Day) ceremonies at Ft. Custer, which once housed prisoners of war.

A memorial address will be delivered in German and English by Norman Dencker, German Consul in Detroit. Military units at the fort and German-American organizations from Detroit, Battle Creek and Grand Rapids will attend.

The ceremony is believed to be the only one of its kind still conducted in the country. The first service was held in 1953. It has been conducted annually since 1956.

Patients admitted to St. Francis Hospital on Friday included: William Monks, Detroit; Lena Sauter, Pine Haven Nursing Home, Gladstone; Lori Ann Godfrey, N. 15th St., Gladstone; Harry Koss, Rochester, Mich.; and Barbara Maata of 1901 7th Ave. S.

Swainson Talks Demo Strategy Here On Monday

Former Governor John B. Swainson comes to Escanaba by air late Monday for a party strategy dinner meeting of Democratic leaders of the Upper Peninsula that evening at the House of Ludington.

Robert Olsen, 11th District Democratic chairman in charge of arrangements for the pow-wow, said that most of the counties would be represented by party leaders and that about 40 reservations had been received, from Houghton County to Chippewa.

Swainson's plane is due at Escanaba Airport about 4 p.m. The conference is of unusual party and public interest because of the debacle of Governor Romney's tax plan in the Legislature and the uncertainty about the Democratic nominee for governor in 1964.

Prospective Nominee
Swainson, who succeeded G. Mennen Williams as governor in 1961, was defeated for a second term by Republican George Romney and remains the titular head of the party in Michigan, but shares the role in practical politics with Congressman-at-Large Neil Stabler. Both men have been prominently mentioned for the governor race in 1964. They head the list of prospects.

Swainson, an attorney, has not announced his candidacy but significantly has not announced that he would not run, and Staebler has been going through the familiar motions of preparation for gubernatorial candidacy. He has been active in party effort to get agreement on a candidate to avoid the intra-party warfare over the nomination of the 1960 campaign, and announced on Sept. 28 that Michigan's Democratic brass would probably settle on a candidate for governor within 60 days. The time is nearly up.

Democratic county leaders of the U.P. are wondering whether Swainson will pass the word of his intentions about the governor race or restrict the conference to discussion of 1964 strategy.

The strategy, apart from the governorship campaign, will bear heavily on action in the Legislature on taxes, apportionment, Aid to Dependent Children of the Unemployed, restructuring of the state government under the new Michigan Constitution which becomes effective Jan. 1, and other matters.

Govt. Reform

While the reform of Michigan's state government, with creation of a new state appellate court and an effort to combine the many state boards, commissions and agencies into about 20 major departments of government is the major long term project, reform of the state's tax structure is a crucial immediate step of top political priority. The recent special session of the Legislature was devoted to it and failed to agree on proposal by Governor Romney for tax reform hinged chiefly on state personal and corporate income taxes and an easing of real estate and business taxes.

Democratic Governors Williams and Swainson both proposed a state income tax but failed to gain acceptance from the Legislature, in which Republicans predominate. Governor Romney's plan has now suffered a similar fate. The reaction to an income tax is bipartisan, as its sponsorship has now become. Heavily Democratic low income voters in Detroit and better fixed Republican conservatives outside are both foes of an income levy.

Helped Romney

Swainson helped Romney publicly with endorsement of the income tax plan and worked to line up Democratic votes in the Legislature for it. Its enactment would have vindicated the earlier Democratic sponsorship of the tax and left the political onus for its enactment with the Republicans. But all strategy except that of defeat failed.

Swainson, like the late Andy Gump in his presidential campaign, appears to wear no man's collar in Democratic politics, but was strongly supported by labor in his campaign for governor. He rejected the play-it-safe counsel of some party leaders and espoused the unpopular income tax as a need of Michigan tax equity and solvency. He retains a considerable strength of leadership in the party.

Stebler, long time state Democratic chairman and manager of the Williams campaigns, is strong with the older elements of the party who held power so long under Williams.

With The Deer Hunters

It was a case of the Upper against the Lower Peninsula this week at Harland Pepin's Camp, "The Roost", at Isabella. Four city slickers from Detroit out shot four Escanabans 4-0. The successful Detroit hunters were Hal Pepin, a six point buck; Chet Daggett, a 180 pound doe; Kenny Gordon, a spikehorn and Dan Roehl, a 165 pound buck. Hunting at the camp from Escanaba were Kenny Iverson, Fred Deno, Bob Pepin and Jack Duleck. Duleck did boast of shooting a buck ... rabbit not deer.

Raymond LeClaire of Perkins downed a 120-pound spikehorn while hunting from a camp owned by he and his brother, Gene, at Perkins Wednesday. Gene, who lives at Bay View, shot a 120-pound spikehorn in the same area Thursday afternoon.

Menominee Is Several Things, Spelled Various

MEMONONIE, Wis. — Which way to Menominee stranger? Depends on how you spell it. Menominee is in Dunn County, Wisconsin. Menominee is in Menominee County in Upper Michigan. And, just to add to the confusion, there also is a Menominee County in Wisconsin and a Menominee Falls in Waukesha County, Wisconsin and Upper Michigan and there is a Menominee River that flows through Milwaukee.

Menomonie, Wis., is the home of Stout State College. There is no college in Menominee, Mich. Some visitors to Stout State have found this out the hard way, according to Dr. Norman C. Ziemann, director of student entertainment at Stout.

He recalls that about 10 years ago a male quartet from Chicago was to perform at Stout. The group caught a plane from Chicago to Menominee—the wrong one, more than 200 miles east of their destination. The group called and cancelled its engagement.

Then there was the Crew Cuts, another male quartet. They started out for Stout driving from Minneapolis, some 60 miles away. They were well on their way to Menominee when they realized their error and had to turn around and head back to Menominee. They arrived just in time to make their performance.

One quartet nearly became a trio when one of its members went to the wrong city. The Four Preps had been scattered all over the country and planned to meet at Stout for their singing engagement. One member went to Menominee.

The similarity of names has affected sports, too. The college was forced to pick up two volunteer officials for a basketball game last January when the hired officials ended up in Menominee.

And if this confusion is not enough there is the whitefish called Menominee, and there's also a potato with that name and an Indian tribe.

Math Course Is Offered Parents

Highway To Link U.S. 41, Sawyer

Preliminary work has been started on a $1.2 million project to build a new two-lane highway from the east end of K. I. Sawyer Air Force Base to U. S. 41, south of Skandia, it was announced Friday.

The United States Bureau of Public Roads and the Michigan State Highway Department are cooperating on the portion of the project extending from the base itself to the state trunkline.

This section runs seven miles. An additional two miles of construction, from where the new highway will link with base property, will be constructed from that point to the main section of Sawyer Base.

The latter project will be financed by Air Force funds, it was reported.

The Michigan State Highway Department survey crews have begun surveying the seven-mile section from the base to U. S. 41.

Sawyer Base officials report that when the highway is completed it is hoped that the present main gate to Sawyer, now located on County Road 553, will become a side gate, with the principal entrance being the two-lane highway from U. S. 41.

Construction work on the project is expected to begin next year.

The Ingraham is currently in the Mediterranean as part of the Sixth Fleet and is expected to return to the United States in December.

Milk Output Up

EAST LANSING (AP)—Milk production this year was up to record levels for many herds in the Michigan Dairy Herd Improvement Association, says Larry Johnson, Michigan State University dairy specialist. Johnson said 26 herds reached a mark of 600 pounds butterfat, while only 14 ranked that high last year. He said 480 herds reached the 500 pounds of butterfat level, compared with 332 in 1962 and 170 in 1961.

Steamer Reiss Will Be Changed To Self-Unloader

The Reiss Steamship Co. announces plans to convert the Steamer Richard J. Reiss into a self-unloader at a cost of about $2 million. Manitowoc Shipbuilding Co., Manitowoc, Wis., will reconstruct the vessel with completion scheduled for mid-summer 1964. The Reiss, one of eight vessels operating on the Great Lakes in the Reiss steamship fleet, was built at Detroit in 1943 to an overall length of 620 feet, a beam of 60 feet, and a depth of 35 feet. In iron ore, the ship, which has an average speed of 14 miles per hour, carries about 15,600 tons, and in coal it carries about 13,100 tons.

Romney And Taxes

Governor Romney's tax reform program is dead at Lansing.

In the new year the Michigan Legislature may tackle the problem again. In the interim there will be much speculation about the effect of the defeat upon Romney's political fortunes and reputation.

It is being suggested that if Romney were a more astute politician he would have stage managed his program better and enhanced its chances of legislative approval. This is true. Romney relied more on good will in the Legislature than a more seasoned politician would have.

The result of this reliance on good intentions and failure to build a groundwork of acceptance in both parties and to tailor his tax reform package to what would be accepted is defeat. Romney tried a technique which has made American industry great and he lost — for the time being at least. The technique is to determine what should be done, to explain it to the buyers and then to try to get them to buy it.

Since we have a republican form of government instead of a pure democracy, Romney had to work through the Legislature instead of directly with the people. The Legislature didn't buy it.

Asked what he thought the result of the defeat of his proposal would mean to his political future, Romney is quoted as saying that he doesn't know and that he couldn't care less. The first is true and the second is wishful. A wise man; he cares, of course, or he will on the rebound.

Romney could have had a victory for some kind of a tax reform program by compromising, but the divergent forces in the Legislature are so divergent that any package he could sell on that basis would be apt to tarnish his political reputation more than defeat. To get licked in a fight for the public interest isn't politically fatal and this must be Romney's concept of his position.

It's too early to assess public reaction, but certainly the Republican party has picked up no luster in the tax reform debate. It may have been hurt more than Romney in final analysis. Michigan's concern in the case should be about the state's welfare and not national notice of Romney as a presidential possibility, and the first Republican term of governor and legislature in 14 years has been unable to agree on what's good for Michigan.

The failure of the Republicans to unite made it necessary for Romney to get some Democratic votes for his program. He didn't get enough. The core of the reform was an income tax and the big opposition to it came from low income heavily Democratic Detroit residents and upper income, outstate conservative Republicans. This is a strange combination of foes, because the Detroiters would have paid less taxes under Romney's program and the outstate Republicans more. It dramatizes the immense diversity that must be reconciled for effective tax reform in Michigan.

The Romney plan defeat should have helped the public understand what's up. Its chief aims have been to shuffle the tax load in Michigan so it relates more evenly to the ability to pay and doesn't impede economic growth. When the people who would benefit from this change fight it as vigorously as those who would pay more taxes, the difficulties of accomplishment and the reasons for George Romney's new scar tissue are evident.

Finding The Way

Imagine Meeting You!

By RALPHE W. LOEW, D. D.

A few months ago we were ushered to our seats in one of Vienna's beautiful theaters. The Schoenbrunn Palace is a cherished reminder of the days of royalty, its theater a gem that sparkles with ancient glory. Here Mozart had played at the age of six years. Here Napoleon had come for concerts and the rulers of the old Austro-Hungarian Empire dreamed of a never-ending glory.

We looked up at other guests came into the row. We laughed with surprise as friends of the years were seated next to us. Since neither of us knew that the other was in Europe, we could only grin and join in the ancient cliché, "Isn't it a small world?"

That delightful and not-too-rare incident only emphasizes our astonishment at ruling out this same possibility of God's presence. The surprising meeting with old friends in distant places is always a possibility.

Why should we rule out the possibility of discovering God's purpose in some surprising situation?

To have faith is to do more than say that God exists. It's to understand that he comes into the same row, becomes your seat mate at the drama, and is involved in the total event until at last you recognize his presence and say, "Imagine meeting you here!"

A clinical analysis of much of the despair, purposeless living and insane clawing at one another that passes for life for many people is due to a sense of abandonment. They're certain that God couldn't move in where they are.

The real saints are those who have walked through the ordinariness of life and discovered the extraordinary presence of God. They could battle everything from enemies to apathies, because they knew that nothing could separate them from the love of God.

It's a poorly supported optimism which believes that we can go through this world without moments and events which test our mettle. It isn't even normal to live in such a time without knowing these deep involvements. Yet it's just as foolish to believe that there is no way through the tension, no way to walk with confidence, and to act as though we're abandoned.

In dealing with any crisis in the daily round, in making the decisions of honor, we find the real fulfillment of our faith. Then, in the most surprising ways, we can look up just as the curtain is going up on some new involvement in life and with an understandable recognition say, "Imagine meeting you here!"

By J. R. LOWELL

Ten Years Ago

By PETER EDSON
WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The $600 million-a-year pay increase for 1.8 million government employees just approved by the House Civil Service Committee is only the first step.

The bill may be amended as it proceeds through the congressional grinder and it might even be killed, though that isn't considered likely.

But the raise could hardly have been brought out at a worse time. For the standing of public servants is now near an all-time low.

The late House speaker Sam Rayburn once summed up an earlier but similar situation this way: "Toward the end of the Truman administration, we got a little bit careless."

The result was that in the 1952 elections the Democrats lost not only the White House but also majority control of both houses of Congress.

The implication today is that if the Democratic administration in the White House and in Congress doesn't tighten up its operations, it will deserve to lose the 1964 elections.

This increasingly heard political criticism is inspired, of course, by the conflict-of-interest charges and questions of ethical conduct involving government officials.

There may be nothing legally wrong in some of these cases. But it did not sit well with public opinion to have former Navy Secretary Fred Korth charged with soliciting business for his bank while holding high government office.

The charges by Rep. Oliver P. Bolton Jr., R-Ohio, against Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz for soliciting lobbyists and trade association representatives to buy $100 tickets for a reception honoring Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., reflect credit on neither. They are too similar to Interior Secretary Stewart Udall's famous round-up of oil company representatives for a Democratic dinner.

The current investigation into the possible conflict-of-interest activities of former Senate majority Secretary Robert G. Baker is merely the latest example of loose administration in Congress.

Before that, there was the record of House clerk Ralph R. Roberts using a government car for travel to race tracks outside of Washington.

Elected congressmen have been involved, as well as their staff assistants. Former Rep. Thomas F. Johnson, D-Md., was sentenced to six months imprisonment for conspiring to use influence to get a mail fraud charge dropped. Rep. Frank Boykin, D-Ala., was spared imprisonment because of bad health, but was fined $40,000 in the same case.

The old racket of putting wives, children, more distant relatives and even friends on the congressional payroll is still practiced flagrantly by both senators and representatives in spite of repeated exposures which seem to do no good.

The scores of senators and representatives holding reserve commissions in the U. S. armed services, exposed by Scripps-Howard reporter Jim Lucas forced a mild congressional inquiry but no general corrective action.

The nation was shocked by disclosures that James M. Landis, former government administrator and Harvard Law School dean, filed no income tax returns over a period of years. A similar charge recently was filed against Herbert K. May, 18-year Treasury official and deputy assistant secretary of state.

And it was only a year ago that Internal Revenue Service renewed action against Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., to collect nearly $50,000 in back income taxes and penalties.

The chiseling fever affects the lowest ranks in government as well as the highest. Witness General Accounting Office evidence that 85 District of Columbia employees were out driving taxis when they were supposed to be working for Uncle Sam.

Not all government employees should be condemned for these excesses by a few. The vast majority are loyal, efficient and in many cases distinguished public servants.

Republican administrations have their crooks as well as the Democrats, and throwing the rascals out is good American political practice.

But if the Democrats want to be returned to power in 1964, and if they want to merit any general pay and salary raises, they have a job to do in raising the standards of conduct in government.

Inland Has Much Stone To Ship Yet

Production and shipping at Inland Lime and Stone Co. will probably continue into the first week of December, John W. Moffat, vice president reports.

The firm has a considerable amount of stone to ship yet this year, but exact closing time is governed by the late season weather, he noted.

The plant has been running six days a week since in April. Operations have been aided by good weather, with no freezing at night.

an additional two bedrooms and bath when the need arises. Its basic area is a modest 1,299 square feet.

From coast to coast young couples spend Sunday afternoons in search of a medium priced sixroom home with bedrooms, an attractive exterior and an up-to-date room arrangement.

Two main obstacles stand in their way:

1. The homes in many developments simply don't offer the individuality, much less the livability, that middle-income families feel their hard earned money should bring.

2. If they are lucky enough to find this dreamhouse, and move in, there's a strong possibility that a family population explosion would soon force them to flee to a larger but less desirable house, with a financial loss that in many cases would be crippling.

Most couples in this category simply can't afford the gamble—and there's no need to if they

H-3 STATISTICS

A 1½-story home of three bedrooms and 1½ baths with upstairs expansion for two additional bedrooms and full bath. Basic area is 1,299 square feet; expansion attic is 675 square feet (full height ceilings); garage and utility room add 366 square feet; front porch 123 square feet; full cellar of 1,299 square feet. Overall dimensions 53'2" wide by 51' deep. Recommended plot: 70' by 100'.

choose today's House of the Week; it was selected specifically to solve this twofold problem.

The house is a quietly elegant three-bedroom model of traditional design which encompasses a basic area of only 1,299 square feet. It's the product of architect Samuel Paul and is design H-3 in the weekly series.

It's greatest attraction is an expansion attic, made possible by a spacious rear dormer, which will add two more enormous bedrooms, a full bath and an abundance of closet and storage space. Best of all, the space can be developed piecemeal as the need arises and much of the work can be done by a handy husband because the basic space is already built and paid for.

Meanwhile the still-young family can enjoy the imaginative and sensible downstairs layout with its sunken living room, balconied dining room, efficient kitchen with plenty of countertop space, breakfast room with a glamorous bow window, nicely located laundry, mud room, main-level bathroom, attached garage, and such other touches as a cathedral ceiling in the foyer and beamed ceilings in the living and dining rooms.

Additional Details

The upstairs expansion will add 675 square feet of living area when it is completed. This is not "emergency" space, but offers full eight-foot-high flat ceilings, a bath with double vanity, a dressing alcove in one of the rooms, and a dramatic balcony overlooking the downstairs foyer.

The lower three bedrooms also are equipped with ample closets and all are within a few steps of the main bath.

Closet space in this house actually deserves special mention. When fully developed there are no less than 18 closets with 125 feet of shelves and 52 feet of hanging space.

The sunken living room has a 9'3" ceiling height, a grand fireplace, and connects through sliding glass doors to the rear patio. An attractive balcony rail separates it from the corner dining room, and both rooms combined provide an expanse of more than 28 feet overlooking the rear terrace.

The family kitchen is nicely located with an excellent view of the side play terrace and only a few steps from both the main entry and service entry. Washer and dryer, and a handy mud room closet, also are nearby, and a sheltered service porch adjoins the side entry behind the garage.

The exterior features a charming covered portico with graceful arches. A low stone wall across the garage shields the garage door from the street view. With its diamond-paned windows and cupola atop the garage wing, the house offers a facade which will be popular for years to come.

Though it appears considerably larger the home actually has modest overall dimensions—only 53'2" wide by 51' deep. Architect Paul suggests a 70' by 100' plot to take full advantage of its L-shaped design.

Check 3 Items In New House

(AP) Newsfeatures

Is it structurally sound? Is it easy to keep clean? Which is my room?

In order, these are the questions, a husband, a wife and a teenager ask themselves when the family is looking over a new house as a possible purchase.

They aren't by any means the only questions prospective buyers ask. But they probably are the most common, even if sometimes they aren't voiced aloud. The husband cherishes the widely accepted idea that, due to his superior knowledge of things material, he must decide whether the house will stand up under the wear and tear of the years. The wife, having read and heard about the many new surfaces which are easy to maintain, expects to see at least some of them in the new house. And the teenager considers nothing more important than having a section of the home, no matter how small, where he can shut himself off from the adult world. (Girls feel the same way about this.)

If the man of the house is the least bit do-it-yourself-minded, he keeps an eye out for an area where he can locate his workshop. The wife spends considerable time looking over the kitchen, where she knows she'll be doing much of her work. The teenager, once satisfied that he has been allotted a room of his own, takes mental note of the house layout to see how it will affect his choices. The size of the lawn, for example, has a definite meaning to him.

One thing apparent to builders, architects and real estate men is that people are a lot more knowledgeable these days than they used to be about what goes into a house. In the past, most home buyers approved or disapproved on the basis of what they could see. Today, they are interested in things which are not visible, yet are important, such as the amount and kind of insulation. The questions they ask about these things indicate they already have a pretty fair idea of the subject and won't be satisfied with a generalized reply with little actual meaning.

All of this is to the good. Builders who spend the money to install quality materials and products will be encouraged to keep doing so if they are aware that the public knows the difference. And builders who specialize in cutting corners, especially on things that can't be seen, may be forced to change their tactics when they realize that buyers are putting up sales resistance to inferior construction.

More people get more news from newspapers than from all other sources combined.

Fixtures Help To Sell Homes

Builders who complain they can't sell their houses should fire their wives who decorate them. Garish decorating of amateurs keeps many good houses from moving, says "project doctor" James Mills of New Canaan, Conn. Mills advises builders who are having trouble moving their houses.

"Many builders leave the selection of important items in the home to their wives or just anybody. You'll find all-black baths with gold-type fixtures, dramatic colors in some rooms that would nauseate you, horrible lighting fixtures and other gagged-up doo-dads. Many ideas are picked up from cheap hotels visited in resort areas or from cheap magazines," he explains.

Often the builder's wife goes to a local store and makes a deal to snap up some surplus stock at a big bargain.

Mills travels over the country in his job as president of Home Facts, a service organization, sizing up areas at builders' request where homes are not moving. He finds fixtures and model home furnishings often keep an otherwise good house from being sold. But fortunately bad decorators are in the minority.

"Many model homes are pretty terrible and the furnishings are deterrents. The poor use of color or wall coverings often gives a nightmarish look to an otherwise good house," he says.

There are other reasons why homes do not move, of course, he says, such as ridiculous standards for home fashions set even by some good magazines.

"A recent list of musts for a new home put out by a magazine included a cathedral ceiling, garbage disposal, dishwasher, barbecue rotisserie. And you aren't considered with it unless you have luminous ceilings, double lavatories and a single-control mixing faucet," he says.

This makes the average woman unhappy about what she can find for what she can afford to pay. If she insists on having extras, it may mean several feet looped off the house to cut costs.

Mills feels it should be more desirable to give a woman a large pantry to solve her storage problems of those large boxes of cleaning powders and foodstuffs and all sorts of small appliances.

"The No. 1 disease in this business is where builders have been adding little bits and pieces of added features to a house. One builder in Texas sold 107 houses in 1961 and 1962 but only eight houses in 1963. His competitor was giving more square footage for $3,000 less. The result was the builder who was failing had to revamp his thinking and strip his new houses to basics."

When home seekers actually have a choice, Mills says, they will invariably choose the house with more space to the one with added attractions that they can always add later themselves, if they like.

Women often mislead builders he says. Many surveys have been taken by groups determined to find out what women really do want in a house but "women are unreliable in saying what they want or don't want," Mills says. Often they buy the very thing they said they didn't want. Everything sounds great until they find out how much it costs.

There are some very good house planners and decorators of model homes in the country who know enough about what they are doing to make a home more salable, says Mills. About 70 per cent of homes are sold as a result of furnishing a model home, his research has shown. One Washington husband and wife team furnish a home by computer.

"Women who have owned homes previously are more knowledgeable, and seek practical features," he points out. They want to be sure they have an entranceway to the garbage spot, even if they have a disposal. They have favorite types of heating. They don't usually like doors opening into living rooms. They are once again looking for spacious bedrooms that give them a little niche for sewing or reading," he says.

Korean Election Foes File Suit

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Charging vote fraud, civilian opponents of strongman Chung Hee Park have filed suit with the Supreme Court asking nullification of his election as president last month.

The Civil Rule party of Yun Po-sun, who narrowly lost the election, filed the suit. It claimed at least 320,000 votes cast for Yun had been either declared invalid or counted as votes for Park.

Park's winning margin was only 162,026 votes.

Menominee Firm Assured Of O.K. For Helicopter

MUSKEGON (AP)—A Federal Aviation Agency official said Friday he saw no barrier blocking Engstrom Helicopter Co. of Menominee from receiving a provisional airworthiness certificate for its new model F-28 helicopter.

"I plan to go to Engstrom Tuesday to inspect the aircraft and possibly issue the certificate," said Richard Lighthizer, an FAA official at Muskegon.

The airworthiness certificate would permit the firm to conduct market surveys, demonstrations, service testing and pilot training with the craft. The helicopter has been under development for more than three years.

How To Silence Squeaky Floors

If your automobile developed a squeak some time ago, the chances are you hardly notice it any more. But someone else riding in your car is likely to hear it immediately. The same thing is true of squeaky floors. While the noise may no longer bother you, it is likely that guests are quickly aware of it.

The treatment for a talking floor depends on whether it is a first floor over an unfinished basement or a second floor with a plaster ceiling underneath. In the former case, the squeaks can be silenced from the basement. In the latter, they must be attacked from the top, which means that some marring of the floor is inevitable. If the floor is to be covered with a rug, this is of little concern. If it will be visible, extra care must be taken to match the patch with the surrounding surface.

When the underside of the first floor can be seen from the basement, your job can be made easier by using an assistant, who will be asked to do nothing more than walk back and forth. While he is doing the walking, on the offending floor, you stay in the basement, marking with a chalk the places where the squeaks are audible. Where the individual boards in the subfloor are not tightly attached to the joist, drive a wedge between them to fill the space. Where a joist appears to be warped, place a piece of 2 by 4 or 2 by 6 between that joist and the next one, nailing it securely. Or you can buy metal bridging made for that purpose. If the squeak appears to be caused by friction between the subfloor and finished floor, pull them together with a screw driven in from underneath. Be sure the screw is not so long that it protrudes through the floor.

The most annoying part of eliminating squeaks from an upstairs floor is locating the joists which, of course, can't be seen. Pounding the floor with the side of your fist is one way to do it. A hollow sound means you've hit an area between joists; a solid sound means you are over a joist. If you can't get the hang of this, you're just going to have to drill a few holes in the floor until you locate a joist and then proceed from there, remembering that the joists are 16 inches apart on center in nearly all construction.

Loose floor boards must be reattached to the joists with two-inch finishing nails or screws of the same size. If nails are used, drive them in pairs at an angle, so that the points meet inside the joists. Threaded nails are especially good for this purpose.

Final Showdown For Rock Island Road Called Off

CHICAGO (AP)—The Union Pacific and U.S. District Court have called off their showdown on the UP's proposal to buy the Rock Island Railroad—a showdown the UP apparently feared it would lose.

In a rough and tumble battle with the Chicago and North Western Railway, which also wants to buy the Rock Island, the UP's 11th-hour resort to court blocked tallying of votes at a special meeting of Rock Island shareholders.

Stuart Ball, counsel for the Union Pacific, told Judge Julius Hoffman Thursday the Rock Island management, which favors UP, may not have control over the required two-thirds of outstanding shares needed to approve the merger.

"I wish I could say the two-thirds vote is in the bag," he said. "Otherwise we wouldn't be in here."

Judge Hoffman issued a temporary restraining order against counting proxies and the Rock Island announced the stockholders meeting today would be adjourned without transaction of any business. Rock Island said the date of the future meeting would be set by the court.

Judge Hoffman set Nov. 19 for a hearing on the UP's request for an injunction.

Portugal May Ask Arrest Of Hijacker In U.S.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United Nations' Trusteeship Committee has voted to invite Portuguese Capt. Henrique Galvao to testify before the group despite the possibility he may be arrested for hijacking the liner Santa Maria in 1961.

The United States warned again Thursday that Galvao, living in exile in Brazil, may be arrested if Portugal requests it. Portugal, which has been after Galvao since he hijacked the Portuguese liner in South America, has an extradition treaty with the United States.

U.S. Delegate Sidney R. Yates told the committee that provisions in the agreement between the United States and the U.N. for immunity outside U.N. headquarters apply only to diplomats assigned to U.N. missions. But he announced the United States would discuss with the United Nations the question of immunity for persons invited to the U.N. on official business.

Fra Junipero Serra, whose mission settlements in California grew into great cities, was born on the island of Majorca.

Red China Still Sees Victory In Southeast Asia

TOKYO (AP) — Red China seems confident of making a major penetration in Southeast Asia despite costly U.S. attempts to defend that strategic area from communism.

The target is Cambodia, a nation next door to Laos, Thailand and South Viet Nam, where the United States has invested heavily in blood and money.

Peking broadcasts boast that Cambodia's chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, has pledged close cooperation with Communist China.

Sihanouk has explained he is grateful for "disinterested" Chinese help at a time when so-called imperialist nations are threatening him, Peking broadcasts say. Almost daily, the radio describes "friendly and cordial" talks between Chinese and Cambodian officials.

Cambodia Is Key
If the Chinese are able to establish a base of operations in Cambodia, all Southeast Asia will be more seriously threatened.

Three major roads run across Cambodia from the South Vietnamese capital of Saigon. Two end in Thailand, the other in Laos.

Prince Sihanouk has broken diplomatic relations with South Viet Nam and Thailand, charging both with border violations and plots against what he calls Cambodia's neutrality.

In recent months, he has shown signs of fear of getting caught up in the type of war that is drenching Viet Nam in blood.

In a newspaper article last September, Sihanouk expressed feeling that communism already has triumphed in Viet Nam and the rest of what once was known as French Indochina.

Millions Poured In

The prince appeared worried that Cambodia—about six million persons, 88,780 square miles—would be unable to stay afloat in the sea of crisis surrounding it. He complained that American policies were a key reason for the supposed Communist triumph.

"Our American friends are remarkable organizers, brilliant technicians and excellent soldiers," he wrote. "But their incontestable realism stops short of the realm of politics, where the attitude of the ostrich seems to them to conform best with their interests."

Far from acting like an ostrich, the United States poured $366 million in economic and military aid into Cambodia between 1955 and June 30, this year. About $30 million was envisaged for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1964.

American military advisers are stationed in Cambodia and U.S. Air Force instructors train Cambodians to fly U.S. airplanes. Shipments of American planes were stepped up last year, apparently in reaction to Cambodia's threat to lean more heavily on the Soviet Union for military hardware.

But the Chinese have spared no effort to woo Sihanouk.

Miss Bonnie L. Hupy Is Michael Forgette's Bride

In a double ring ceremony performed at 11 a.m. today in St. Francis Xavier Church in Spalding, Miss Bonnie Lee Hupy became the bride of Michael Forgette.

Rev. Walter Franczek performed the ceremony and was celebrant of the Nuptial High Mass. The parish senior choir sang the mass with Mrs. Wallace Wells as organist.

Parents of the bridal couple are Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hupy of Spalding and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Forgette of Nadeau.

Bridal Attendants
Maid of honor for her sister was Judy Hupy of Chicago and Miss Marilyn Pietsch, a close friend and Miss Karen Sharkey, the bride's college roommate were bridesmaids.

Donald Forgette, the bridegroom's brother, was best man with Jack Bishop, a fraternity brother from Houghton and Henry Lickman of Carney as groomsmen. Another fraternity brother, Lynn Veeder of Powers and Kenny Linder of Carney, seated the guests.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a floor length gown of white taffeta. The controlled bell-shaped skirt swept to a chapel train and Alencon lace and seed pearls embellished the bodice which featured a scoop neckline and long sleeves. A clover shaped headpiece made of seed pearls held her bouffant shoulder length veil. She carried a cascading bouquet of white and gold roses.

The bride's attendants were identically attired in gold brocade taffeta. The street length gowns featured a round neckline, three quarter length sleeves and a removable overskirt. Their headpieces were a cluster of matching flowers with a wisp veil. Gold baby mums and white carnations with trailing ivy were carried.

Mother's Attire

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Hupy chose a three piece suit of green knit wool, with it she wore brown accessories. The bridegroom's mother was attired in a turquoise wool knit two piece suit with black accessories. The mothers were presented with corsages of gold and white roses.

A reception will be held beginning at 4 p.m. at the American Legion Hall in Powers followed by a dance at 9 p.m. with the Wells Family Orchestra providing the music.

Following a honeymoon trip in the Upper Peninsula the newlyweds will make their home in Spalding.

The bride is a 1961 graduate of Powers - Spalding High School and attended Northern Michigan University for two years. Mr. Forgette graduated from Carney High School the same year and is presently a junior at Northern where he is an officer in Delta Sigma Phi, national social fraternity.

Emily DeRouin, a recent graduate of Escanaba Beauty Academy, now is with the House of Ludington Beauty Salon, Miss DeRouin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil DeRouin, Wells, was first place winner of the senior division Beauty Show competition at the Academy.

Navy Secretary Choice Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the news from Washington:

UNDERGROUND BLAST: A small nuclear weapons test was conducted underground Thursday at the Atomic Energy Commission's Nevada test site.

The shot was described by the commission as low yield—a force equivalent to that of 20,000 tons of conventional explosives or less.

This was the eighth announced underground American test since a limited nuclear test ban pact was signed Aug. 5 prohibiting nuclear tests in the atmosphere, in space and underwater.

DELAY: The Senate Armed Services Committee deferred Thursday a vote on the nomination of Paul H. Nitze to be secretary of the Navy and William F. Bundy to succeed him as assistant secretary of defense for security affairs.

The postponement was requested by Sens. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., who told chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., they want more time to check new reports concerning Nitze's nomination. Russell set no date for a vote.

OVERSEAS TEACHING: The National Education Association said Thursday the Defense Department has not responded adequately to a request that teachers in overseas schools for the children of American servicemen be given sufficient salaries and facilities.

As a result, the association, which represents 860,000 American educators, advised teachers to be wary of jobs in such schools. They suffer from a serious shortage of supplies, up-to-date text-books and specialist teachers, the NEA said.

According to NEA figures, overseas teachers with two years' experience and a bachelor's degree received $4,435 last year, while those in large urban schools in the United States received an average of $4,941.

Transistor Takes Place Of Points
DETROIT (AP)—Holley Carburetor Co. of suburban Warren says it has developed a new transistor ignition system that eliminates the points in a car distributor.

Holley said the unit is available as a replacement part for virtually any U. S. cars or trucks.

Holley said there will be virtually no distributor maintenance with its new system. It sells for about $100.

Painters Fill Up Acoustic Holes
WASHINGTON (AP)—The painters went to work with gusto last summer in the U.S. attorney's office at the Court of General sessions.

They even filled in all the little holes in the acoustical ceiling.

Thursday it was announced that bids will be let to install new acoustical material. The office is no longer soundproof.

Bureau Divided
EAST LANSING (AP)—Reorganization of the Detective Bureau into two independent units has been announced by State Police Commissioner Joseph Childs. One unit will become the Bureau of Investigative Services. The other unit will be known as the Intelligence and Security Division.

Glassy-Eyed
MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—"She was glassy-eyed," police testified Thursday in the trial of a woman charged with drunken driving.

Defense counsel agreed. The defendant, he said, wears contact lenses. She was acquitted.

Auto Makers Have Backlog

DETROIT (AP)—A one-week shutdown announced Thursday by Studebaker Corp. added to production problems faced by the auto industry already battling to meet strong consumer new car demand.

Industry sources reported many manufacturers with a mounting lack of new cars to fill orders. One General Motors division reported a backlog of retail orders of nearly 200,000.

The production backlog was reflected in manufacturer's reports on sales in the first 10 days of November. Chevrolet said its first 10 days sales this month totaled 6,564 compared with 7,181 in the same period last year.

Studebaker went on a four-day work week two weeks ago as its 1964 model sales lagged. In explaining the week's closing of its auto making facilities, effective next Monday, a Studebaker spokesman said:

"It was either that or go to a three day work week for a brief time and we figured the one week's shutdown would be better, as it would enable sales to catch up with production."

Sales Take Drop

The South Bend, Ind., auto manufacturer sold 1,820 cars in the first 10 days of November, a drop over the 2,636 in the same dates last year. For the calendar year to date, Studebaker has sold 57,622 cars, compared with 70,189 at a similar date in 1962.

The U.S. auto industry sold an estimated 189,555 cars in the first 10 days of this month, compared with 217,834 in a similar period last year.

However, there were only eight selling days in the first 10 days of this November, while there were nine in the like period of 1962.

Auto dealers across the nation reported one of their chief problems was a lack of cars to fill orders.

Chevrolet's general sales manager Larry Averill reported his "backlog of retail orders up sharply over the same period in 1962 and now numbers nearly 200,000."

Dealers Run Short
Averill added, "many dealers are faced with serious shortages of new models."

The Chevrolet executive explained that work stoppages at two plants—in Ohio and Georgia—had cut into Chevrolet's anticipated production and dropped the supply of new cars and trucks well behind customer demand.

A Buick spokesman estimated a work stoppage at a work stoppage at a Georgia plant had cost Buick about 1,500 production units.

Dodge division, Chrysler Corp. reported its 10-day sales for Nov. 1-10 this year averages 1,099 a day—the highest for that period in the 50-year history of Dodge.

Industry sources expressed belief the rash of minor labor disputes which have hit widely scattered parts of the auto manufacturing business would be settled soon and that sales for the fourth quarter of this year might set a record.

Home Rule Up
DETROIT (AP)—A preliminary draft of proposed enabling legislation to give Michigan's 83 counties home rule was prepared for the Wayne County Board of Supervisors Friday.

The Board is expected to act on it Nov. 26. If approved, it will be sent to the legislature. Home rule would extend more authority to counties.

Ann Landers

Click Or Cluck?

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 13-year-old girl and in the eighth grade. In our class at school there are two groups of girls. One group is known as the clicks and the other group is known as the clucks.

The clicks are fast kids and the clucks are the slow kids. Clicks do their hair up fancy, smoke, make-out, and are boy crazy. Clucks study a lot, they do not wear lipstick, even on the sneak, and they seem sort of boring and babyish.

My problem is that I can't make up my mind which group I want to join. I look more like a Click, but my actions fit the Clucks better.

Can you help me decide? — BIRDIE

Dear Birdie: No, I can't help you decide. This decision is one only you can make.

I can tell you, however, that I've received thousands of letters from Clicks who wish they had stayed Clucks.

Dear Ann Landers: I just finished reading the letter from the young man who wrote about his dainty bride who snored worse than any Army buddy he'd ever bunked with.

Well, I, too, have been married less than a year. My wife told me after two weeks that I had to do something about my snoring because I was keeping her up nights.

I went to a doctor and he could find nothing wrong with my nose or throat. He told me I had developed a habit of sleeping with my mouth open, and that's why I snored.

I was determined to break the habit and decided to experiment. Before retiring I placed two pieces of ordinary adhesive tape over my mouth. This is not nearly so uncomfortable as it sounds. After one week my problem was solved. I no longer have to use the tape. I now sleep with my mouth closed.

No kidding, Ann. It works.

Try it. — SNORE NO MORE

Dear Snore: Thanks for your suggestion but I don't have to try it. I don't snore.

Dear Ann: My mother was always certain I would marry the richest and handsomest man in the world. When I married only the kindest and most loving she was crushed. Mother punished me for disappointing her by denying me the lovely wedding I had always dreamed of. She said his family was "not suitable to show off to our friends."

For two years after our marriage I tried to get mother to see Ben's fine qualities and to accept him. She refused to even speak his name. We were never once invited to her home for a meal. She came to our home only when Ben was out of the city.

Six months ago mother suffered a heart attack. She made a good recovery after several weeks in the hospital. The doctor said she should not be left alone. After she fired three nurses in two weeks, Ben insisted that we take her into our home. Since mother has been with us I have become a nervous wreck. She criticizes his English and belittles him continuously. I leave the dinner table in tears every night. What shall I do? — ALICIA

Dear Alicia: Move your mother out of your home at once. Contribute to her support elsewhere if necessary, but don't subject yourself or Ben to her presence. The alternative may be a monstrous medical bill to restore your own shattered health (and Ben's, too).

Over 500 women from all parts of the Upper Peninsula and Northern Wisconsin are expected to attend the annual Holiday Fair at the Dickinson County Armory in Iron Mountain on Thursday, Nov. 21. Sponsored by the Dickinson County Hospital League, the fair, including a tea, will take place from one to six in the afternoon.

On sale will be over 1,000 items produced in the League's weekly workshops as well as many decorative pieces, knitted garments, candy and other baked goods. The proceeds from the fair are used to purchase special equipment for the Dickinson County Memorial Hospital in Iron Mountain.

Chicago Woman Leaves Hoard Of Unworn Clothes

CHICAGO (AP) — Like most women, Violet Bidwill Wolfner cherished clothes.

But unlike most women, she could look at dresses by the thousand and just by going to her attic.

Judging from the clothes hoard found at the late wealthy sportsman's home in suburban Wilmette, Mrs. Wolfner did little more than look at her fantastic wardrobe.

Many of the more than 1,000 dresses and coats were unworn, their tags—sizes 12 to 16—still in them. Dozens of the 1,500 pairs of shoes never were taken from their boxes.

Gowns bearing such labels as Dior and Pauline Trigere never were unpacked from the tissue paper in which they were delivered.

Hundreds of Chicago women were having a window-shopping spree Friday and today as they jammed an auction gallery to examine the wardrobe, which will be sold next week.

The wardrobe is part of a $3-million estate left by Mrs. Wolfner, who died in January 1962.

Mrs. Wolfner's first husband was Charles W. Bidwill, owner of the Chicago Cardinals football team that later became the St. Louis Cardinals. He died in 1957, and in 1949 she married Walter Wolfner.

Friends of Mrs. Wolfner say she went out seldom and did little entertaining.

In addition to the dresses, coats and shoes are several hundred hats, more than 100 negligees, several hundred purses and pairs of gloves.

Some of the clothes date back to the 1920s. They are in perfect condition, as is everything in the wardrobe.

Grid Heavyweights Will Clash Sunday

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago Bears and the Green Bay Packers meet Sunday in an effort to break their first-place tie in the Western Division of the National Football League.

The big game has been given the buildup of a heavyweight title fight, and the winner is considered a good bet to wrap up the divisional championship.

The Bears-Packers clash has shored into the background Sunday's six other NFL games. St. Louis is at Cleveland and San Francisco is at New York and the Browns and the Giants favored to win and remain tied for the Eastern Division lead. In the other games Pittsburgh is at Washington, Baltimore at Minnesota, Los Angeles at Detroit and Philadelphia at Dallas.

In the rival American League the top Sunday game is at Buffalo where the Bills try for their fourth straight against the San Diego Chargers. Kansas City is at Boston and New York at Denver in other AFL tilts.

NFL To Try Theater TV

DETROIT (AP)—The National Football League will experiment with theater televising of its games next season, Commissioner Pete Rozelle said Friday. But he said this would not effect the NFL home television programs.

"I seriously doubt that the NFL will ever abandon free home television," Rozelle said.

The NFL boss, a visitor in Detroit on his way to Chicago for Sunday's Chicago Bears-Green Bay Packers battle for the NFL's Western Division lead, spoke at the Adcraft Club.

Rozelle also met privately with President William Clay Ford and general manager Edwin J. Anderson of the Detroit Lions, presumably over Ford's offer to buy the Lions for $6 million.

Rozelle indicated he thought well of Ford's offer. He said that at one time the NFL approved group ownership of a club but that now one owner or an owner with controlling interest is felt preferable. The Lions are owned by 144 stockholders and operated by a board of directors. The board has recommended approval of Ford's offer by the stockholders.

Rozelle repeated he would review the Alex Karras and Paul Hornung cases in January. The Detroit and Green Bay stars were suspended indefinitely on

Ford Is Named Pitching Coach

NEW YORK (AP)—The complaint for years against Whitey Ford has been that he's too selfish. The brainy New York Yankee southpaw refuses to reveal any of his pitching secrets.

The time finally has come for baseball's most successful pitcher to impart some of his knowledge. As the new pitching coach of the Yankees, it will be his duty to work with and help younger members of the staff in the hope that some of his mound brilliance rubs off on them.

Ford, dubbed "Chairman of the Board," by catcher Elston Howard, gained his new title Friday. Whitey was given a "substantial" raise which boosted his dual-role salary to a whopping $60,000. He replaces Johnny Sain, who was given his unconditional release because of a disagreement on salary terms.

"We asked Sain to return at the same salary as last year," explained General Manager Ralph Houk. "He demanded an increase which we felt was unreasonable."

Sain, who had been Houk's pitching coach from the time Ralph succeeded Casey Stengel as manager in the winter of 1960, acknowledged he had asked for a $2,500 a year raise on a two-year contract.

Ford will continue to take his regular turn on the mound. He thinks he can do it successfully for two or three more years.

"I had a poor season in 1960," said the 35-year-old pitching wonder. "And I thought then I was near the end of my career. But my arm has felt fine the last three years and I think I can keep winning for a while yet."

Ford posted a 24-7 record in 1963, tops in the American League. He pitched the most innings, 269 1-3, and tied with teammate Ralph Terry for the most starts, 37. It was his second 20-plus game winning season. His overall record is 199-78 with a .718 percentage, tops in major league history for a pitcher with 100 or more victories.

Ford didn't think his new duties would prove too much of a burden on his pitching.

"If I thought so, I wouldn't

Green Bay is out to avenge a 10-3 season opening loss before starting a string of eight straight victories. The Bears, having lost only to San Francisco, hope to prove their earlier triumph over the Packers was no fluke.

Both teams have held secret practices, shrouded in mystery. But the only surprise for the standing-room-only crowd, which should hit 50,000, will be if either team strays from its basic patterns.

The Packers are favored by four points. The weather is expected to be cloudy and cool with a chance of showers.

Green Bay Coach Vince Lombardi has selected John Roach to start at quarterback, although Bart Starr's injured hand has healed. Roach has directed the Packers to three victories since Starr's injury.

Jim Taylor and Tom Moore, two of the league's top runners, will lead Green Bay's ground attack, and if the Packers need a field goal it will have to come off the foot of Jerry Kramer.

The Bears don't have any runners in the class of Taylor and Moore and will rely on the passing and generalship of quarterback Bill Wade. Rick Casares and Joe Marconi will split the fullback duties, but Coach George Halas will not say whether it will be Ronnie Bull or Willie Galtmore at left halfback.

The Bears' big forte is defense, which in six of nine games has held the opposition to one touchdown or less. In three of the games the opposition, including Green Bay, failed to score a touchdown.

Peralta Edges Wayne Thornton

NEW YORK (AP)—After whipping Wayne Thornton in a bruising 10-rounder Friday night Argentine Gregorio Peralta probably will have to beat the Californian again to get a title fight with light heavyweight champion Willie Pastrano.

The handsome, 28-year-old heavyweight king of Argentina chopped and poked his way to a split verdict over the light heavyweight contender from Fresno in a television thriller at Madison Square Garden.

Then Harry Markson, the director of boxing at the Garden, offered the two a rematch for Dec. 13. Both Peralta and Thornton agreed provided there is a written contract guaranteeing the winner a title fight with Pastrano.

They'll start the dickering early next week. Peralta was an 11-5 favorite as he ran his unbeaten streak to 44, including two draws. The dark-haired gaucho has lost only one fight, a knockout to Peruvian Mauro Mina in his first pro start. Since then it's come up roses.

With a big clique of Argentines in the slim crowd of about 2,000 cheering him on, Peralta broke up a tight battle, fought mostly at close range, by sweeping the fifth, sixth, and seventh rounds. He was cut over the left eye in the eighth round and Thornton won that big to narrow the margin.

Judge Artie Aidala six rounds to four, and judge Tony Rossi, 6-3-1, voted for Peralta. Referee

Al Balding Boosts Lead

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Toronto's lanky Al Balding carried a two-stroke lead and tank of oxygen into today's third round of the Mexico Open Golf Tournament.

Balding, who complained of feeling groggy at times because of the mile-and-a-half high altitude of the La Hacienda course, sniffed oxygen from time to time en route to his three-under-par second round 69 Friday.

That gave him a 36-hole total of 136 and gave him a two-stroke lead over Mexican Juan Neri, who shared the lead at the end of the first round.

Balding, the Canadian champion who had a first round 67, put together three birdies on the front nine, then settled down to par the incoming half of the 7,622-yard, par 72 layout.

A number of the other touring pros found the course to their liking and stayed well within striking range. Bob Gajda of Detroit, Ernie Vossler of Oklahoma City and Doug Sanders of Ojai, Calif., all shot second-round 68s. Gajda had a 139 going into today's round, Vossler and Sanders 140 each.

have accepted," he said. "Besides, I believe a pitching coach's main work is down in spring training."

Ford's appointment rounds out the four-man coaching staff. Jimmy Gleeson was signed as first base coach last Wednesday and holdover coaches Frank Crosetti and Jim Hegan have returned signed contracts.

Ford was the second coach signed by Berra since he succeeded Houk as manager three weeks ago. Gleeson also was Yogi's choice.

Engelhorn Is Tourney Pacer

OCEAN SPRINGS, Miss. (AP)—"The best round of golf I have ever played" has Shirley Engelhorn out front with a three-stroke lead today in the $15,600 Mary Mills Gulf Coast Invitational.

Shirley toured the difficult 6,224-yard, 35-36-71 Gulf Hills Country Club course Friday with a two-under-par 34-35-69 for her opening round.

She was long off the tees, sharp with her irons and her putting was accurate.

Kathy Whitworth was in second place with a one-over-par 72. Sybil Griffin was third with 37-36-73.

Mary Mills, the Mississippi pro, was braced at 77, along with the circuit's leading money winner, Mickey Wright, and several others.

McKinley Bows In Net Action

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Mike Sangster of Britain beat United States ace Chuck McKinley 6-0, 6-3, 6-1 in the semi-final of the New South Wales Tennis Championship today but the American was reported to have suffered from muscle trouble.

American team captain Robert Kelleher said McKinley told him he suffered a recurrence of an old muscle spasm in the back during the match.

Celtics May Set Record

By The Associated Press
At the rate they are going the Boston Celtics may set a record for most victories in the National Basketball Association this season.

The Celts, aiming for a sixth straight NBA championship, made it 11 victories in their first 12 starts by walloping the New York Knicks 133-116 Friday night.

This is traveling at a .917 pace far in excess of the Celtics' .750 gait two years ago when they won 60 and lost 20 to set the record for most victories in a season. It is better, too, than their .787 in 1960 when they won 59 and lost only 16. The NBA schedule called for 75 games that season instead of the current 80.

Philadelphia came from 15 points back to defeat the Los Angeles Lakers 99-97 and the Detroit Pistons also came from behind to whip San Francisco 101-98 in Friday's other games.

Vatican Council Set To Take Up Christian Unity

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican Ecumenical Council concluded its debate on the disputed issues involving diocesan governments today and prepared to take up the major question of Christian unity Monday.

The topic—one of the council's main goals—has been discussed indirectly many times since the Church gathering first convened 13 months ago. But now Christian unity will come up for the first time as a specific question before the 2,300 church fathers gathered in St. Peter's Basilica.

Pope Paul VI scheduled a meeting today with several council leaders, including the council's secretary-general and its four presiding cardinals.

One report said the meeting may discuss a petition from 10 cardinals and 300 bishops asking the Pope to be more specific on his plans for allowing bishops an expanded role in governing the Church. This has generated the most heat in debate on the diocesan question.

The petitioners want the pontiff to explain references to papal-episcopal power and reform of the Vatican Curia in two September speeches.

Disposition of the petition is up to the four moderators. They

Sailors Sought In Naval Station $125,000 Holdup

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The FBI is seeking two North Island Naval Air Station sailors for questioning in connection with a pay-day robbery of $125,000 from a bank inside San Diego Naval station.

The pair were identified as Victor Lawrence Taylor, 22, and Jeremiah Robert Terrence, in his early 20s.

Witnesses said two robbers in Navy Shore Patrol uniforms entered the Bank of America branch Friday flourishing guns. Each fired a shot. They ordered the nearly 40 customers and employees to lie on the floor.

The holdup was a record theft for the San Diego area, authorities said.

Driver Of School Bus Fired For Beating Train

WARREN (AP)—A school bus driver was fired Friday on a New York Central railroad complaint that he raced his bus carrying 60 children across a track as a freight train approached.

The board of the Warren Consolidated Schools dismissed Andrew Pignar, 46, a driver for three years.

The board said witnesses reported that Pignar raced the train to a crossing in this Detroit suburb Nov. 4, stopped, then started up again and drove over the tracks as the train approached.

A. S. Luttermoser, the engineer, told NYC police the bus was so close he could read its license number.

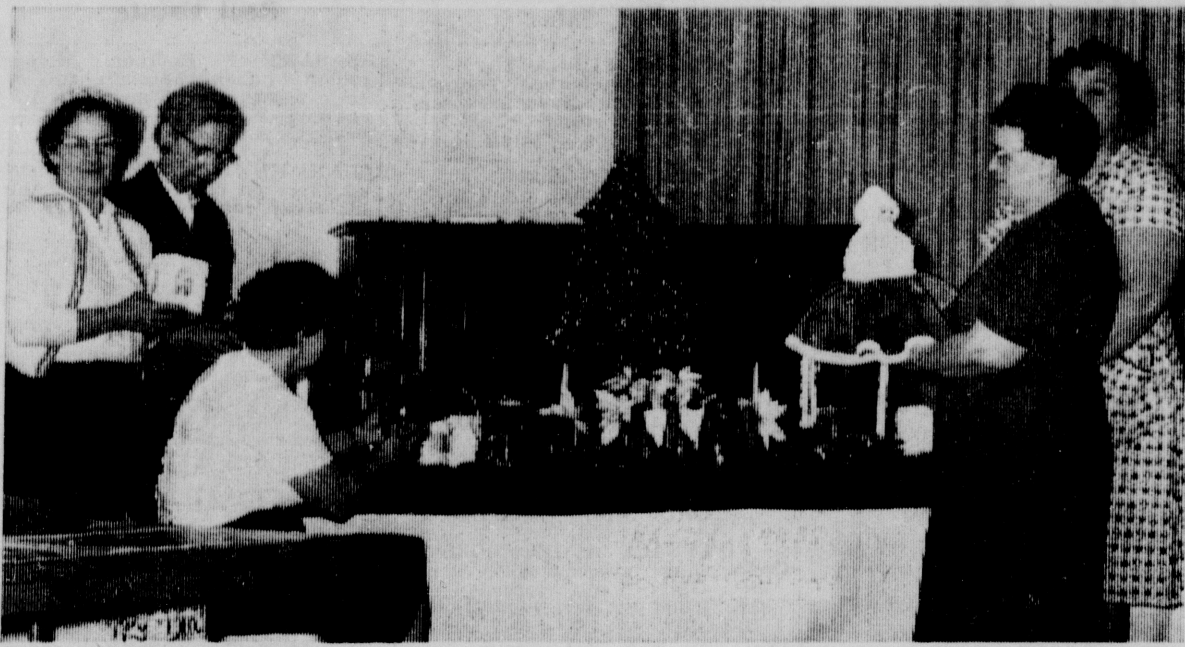

Pignar, married and a father, is a World War II and Korean War veteran. He survived the Bataan death march in the Philippines in World War II.

Fake Fire Calls Drop In Detroit From 43 To Nine

DETROIT (AP)—False alarms have fallen off sharply since the death of a firefighter on Nov. 9, the Detroit Fire Department reported Friday.

Only nine false calls were reported Thursday, according to Marvin Niefert, the department's chief dispatcher, the lowest number in a "long, long time."

Niefert said there were 43 false alarms last Saturday, the night Fireman Albert J. Booth Jr., 43, was killed while riding to a false alarm. His fire truck was in a collision with a car. Two other firemen were injured.

Husband Hoards Like Pack Rat

By JOY STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — I'm not worried about whether I married a man or a mouse. What I'm wondering is if I married a man or a packrat.

My husband doesn't just bring home the bacon. He brings home everything else he can get his hands on, too. And once the stuff is on the premises he wants to keep it there.

If he had his way, nothing would ever be thrown out except orange peelings and coffee grounds. He is absolutely convinced everything else will come in handy some day.

Choice Old Junk

All our friends have been briefed never to dispose of anything without first consulting him. In this way we have come into possession of such choice items as an old electric phonograph with no tubes, a metal bookcase with most of the shelves missing, and a massive solid oak headboard from someone's discarded bed.

I admit some of these odds and ends he collects have come in handy in the past when he did a lot of building for our children. He once made a wagon out of nothing but scraps of lumber, wheels from old carriages and tricycles, and even rehabilitated bolts and nails. It held six kids. He looked pretty smug when he painted it with

Jacket Gone

Still, it's impossible to get him to part with all the old apple crates, heavy chains, bed slats, sea shells and chipped flower pots he has collected.

We were taking a walk one evening and came across some large boxes discarded behind a store.

"What nice, big nails," murmured my companion. "Seems a shame not to salvage them."

Whereupon he shed the jacket I had just given him for his birthday and went to work prying the crates apart and hammering out the nails. He tied the nails in a handkerchief and we continued our walk.

It was only after we reached home that he discovered he'd left his jacket at the scene. We went back but it wasn't there. "Too bad about the jacket," I sympathized. "It might have come in handy."

Public Works Budget Slashed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee slashed more than $285 million today from President Kennedy's public works budget. Rejections included the last-minute request for $45 million to help eastern Kentucky and other depressed areas.

The committee sent to the House floor for action next week a bill calling for $4,276,116,400 in new funds to finance river and harbor and flood control projects, reclamation projects, the Atomic Energy Commission, the Tennessee Valley Authority and several other public works programs.

The president had requested $4,561,747,000 for the year ending next June 30. In all, the committee cuts added up to $285,630,600.

The committee action is the first legislative step on the measure. The bill is subject to additional cuts as it makes its way through the full House and Senate. And on the other hand, there is always the possibility the Kentucky relief proposal and other cuts made by the committee may be restored at least in part to the final measure.

Suit To Prevent Barnett Speech At UM Dismissed

DETROIT (AP)—U.S. District Judge Thaddeus Machrowicz today dismissed a suit to prevent Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett from speaking at the University of Michigan.

Detroit Negro Jackie Vaughn III filed the suit for an injunction contending that permitting Barnett to speak amounted to official university sanction of the governor's segregationist policies.

He also contended it denied him civil rights as guaranteed under the 14th Amendment of the U.S. Constitution; that Barnett's segregationist point of view represented a "clear and present danger" to him and other Negroes, and the appearance could provoke violence and riots.

The speech is scheduled for next Monday.

Machrowicz said that no matter what else Barnett had done and "no matter how reprehensible his views," he had the right of free speech.

State Changes Kill Policy On Nuisance Deer

Rep. Clifford E. Perras today made public a letter he received from the Conservation Department in answer to a request by him for information on the issuance of a damage control permit to the Trudell farm at Hermansville.

Deer were causing crop damage.

The letter from E. E. Rucker, chief of law enforcement in the Conservation Department Field Administration Division explained the law authorizing issuance of permits to control wildlife depredation and said: "At one time we followed a policy of being rather 'stingy' in the issuance of 'kill' permits and we would not issue one unless the damage being suffered was substantial, basing our policy on the theory that damage by wildlife was one of the hazards of agricultural pursuits, the same as rain, hail, windstorm, etc."

"However, a case arose in which a farmer in one of the southwestern counties of the state complained of damage by deer and, upon our investigation of same, it was our opinion that the damage being suffered was not substantial and we refused to issue him a 'kill' permit. The farmer then took matters into his own hands and killed two deer. We promptly arrested him."

"We obtained a conviction in the lower courts, but, upon appeal, the case was dismissed, the court holding that the farmer had a constitutional right to protect his property after having exhausted all remedies available to him by law when he reported the damage and requested a permit to kill the offending animals."

"This decision, of course, meant that if we were to retain any vestige of control over the destruction of nuisance wildlife, we had to change our procedure in issuing control permits."

"The policy presently followed is that, where our personal investigation discloses that damage is being suffered from depredations of wildlife and other control measures are not feasible, a 'kill' permit is issued. At the same time we urge the property owner to do whatever he can to alleviate his problem through other means, such as hunting and trapping during open season by himself and invitees whom he would encourage to come upon his land for these purposes."

"Of course we cannot force him as a condition to the issuance of a control permit, to allow others to hunt or trap on his property."

"We are reluctant to issue 'kill' permits, but we believe you will agree that, under the court's ruling, it is a matter of necessity rather than one of choice."

Russian Concert Group Picketed At Detroit Hall

DETROIT (AP) — A group of 35 to 40 men and women picketed Detroit's Masonic Temple just before the Moscow Chamber Orchestra began a concert Friday night. But there was no outward sign that the orderly demonstration had anything to do with Russia's seizure of Yale Prof. Frederick Barghoorn on spy charges.

The pickets carried signs bearing such slogans as "Khrushchev's Trojan Horse! Cultural Exchange!" and "Culture yes, Reds no." They disbanded shortly after the concert started.

At one point, police stepped in when a group of pickets tried to carry a flower-shrouded coffin into the auditorium. The coffin bore signs saying "Captive Nations." It was taken from a hearse driven up to the building by the group which called itself "Americans for the Restoration of Freedom to Captive Nations."

Two Make Pleas Of Innocence In Soviet Spy Plot

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — John William Butenko, an American engineer, and Igor A. Ivanov, a Russian chauffeur, pleaded innocent Friday in federal court to charges of conspiring to transmit defense secrets to the Soviet Union.

The government expects to move for a trial in January. Conviction on the charges could bring the death penalty.

Butenko, 38, a resident of Orange, N.J., was a $14,700-a-year control administrator on secret Air Force contracts.

He and Ivanov were arrested Oct. 29 after a seven-month investigation by the FBI. They were seized in a deserted parking lot in Englewood, N.J., along with two members of the Soviet Union's delegation to the United Nations. The two Russians have returned to the Soviet Union.

Mexican Girl, 2, Is Saved From Mystery Bites

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Surgeons have repaired half the tissue damage suffered by Maribel Olea, 2, a Mexican girl who nearly died of a mysterious ailment.

Doctors at Children's Hospital said Maribel of Yuma, Ariz., came through the operation Friday in good condition.

The child suffered tissue damage on her left arm and the left side of her chest and back as result of bites from an insect or reptile physicians were unable to identify.

Dinner With Ike In Detroit To Be Fund-Raiser

LANSING (AP)—The Republican state finance committee has announced the appointment of Paul Bagwell and Wendell Anderson as co-chairmen of the "Dinner with Ike" fund-raiser scheduled for Jan. 29 in Detroit's Cobo Hall.

Former President Eisenhower will appear at the Detroit dinner. His talk will be piped by closed circuit television to some 35 other dinners across the country.

Tickets to the dinner will sell for $100 each. Bagwell and Anderson said they are sure they can sell at least 4,000 tickets.

Bagwell, the unsuccessful GOP gubernatorial candidate in 1958 and 1960, is now a Detroit businessman. Anderson is president of the Bundy Tubing Co. of Detroit.
